ABSTRACT

This annotated bibliography lists bibliographies and journals which review books, periodicals, audiovisual materials, and microcomputer hardware and software useful for instructional purposes in public and private elementary and secondary schools. Although the focus is on curriculum oriented materials for elementary and secondary schools, some sources useful to colleges, universities, and specialized interest areas are included. With few exceptions, the sources identified have been published since 1979 and all citations are annotated. A directory of publishers and an author-title index are provided. (RBF)

Preface

Aids to Media Selection for Students and Teachers is a list of bibliographies and journals which review books, periodicals, audiovisual materials, and microcomputer hardware and software useful for instructional purposes in public and private elementary and secondary schools.

The major focus of this publication is toward curriculum oriented materials for elementary and secondary schools. To meet the needs of users outside of this category, the scope has been broadened to include reviewing bibliographies and journals which can be used as selection sources in colleges, universities, and specialized interest areas.

The new Aids to Media Selection for Students and Teachers lists only reviewing tools published since 1979, except for a few older titles which have been retained because they fill a need where there is scarcity of information.

The format varies from previous editions in two ways. The section on multiethnic materials has been deleted to conform with the current practices on incorporating such materials into general bibilography on all subjects. The widespread use of microcomputers for instructional purposes has created a demand for information on the selection of microcomputers and quality software. To meet this need, a new section entitled Sources of Computer Technology has been included.

Aids to Media Selection for Students and Teachers has been widely used by State and local educational agencies to encourage high standards in the selection of materials. The publication has also proven useful to library educators, public librarians, students training to be teachers and librarians, professional and commercial associations related to these fields, and to personnel involved in research.

Looking forward to the implementation of the Educational Consolidation and Improvement Act, it is hoped that Aids to Media Selection for Students and Teachers will be a source which will make a significant contribution to educators engaged in the identification of materials and equipment to achieve excellence and improved quality in American education.

Because this document is a work of the United States Government as defined by Section 105 of Public Law 94-553 this work is in the public domain.

Inclusion of a bibliography or periodical does not imply official endorsement of it or any item in it by the National Association of State Educational Media Professionals (NASTEMP). Prices quoted for all items are subject to change.

I. BOOK SELECTION SOURCES

Part A: Nonselective Bibliographies

The volumes described below are primarily quick-reference tools. For the book selector they indicate the range of the field and of subject categories, as well as current availability; any element of choice has been exercised only by the publishers.

R.R. Bowker Co. Art Books 1950-1979. 1979. 1,500 pp. $75.

Contains approximately 37,000 books and serials on the visual arts with full finding and ordering information for each title. Separate author and title index. A special feature is the Internationary Directory of Museum Permanent Collection Catalogs which contains bibliographic and ordering information on more than 3,300 catalogs published all over the world.

Biographical Books 1950-1980. 1980. 1,557 pp. $75.

A guide to approximately 45,000 biographies, autobiographies, personal narratives, collective biographies and other biographical works published or distributed in the U.S. in the past 30 years. The main section is the name index which consists of biographies and autobiographies arranged under the biographee's name. Collective biographies are also included under the name of the biographee. Includes author, title, vocation and collective biography indexes.

Books in Print 1981-1982. 1981. 10,000 pp. $127.

Access to approximately 575,000 books of all kinds from 12,000 publishers. Thousands of out-of-print books have been deleted and new titles and editions added. Full bibliographic information included.

Books in Print Supplement 1980-1981. 1981. 2,700 pp. $58. Annual revision in spring.

Designed to close the gap between fall publications. Includes 40,000 new books published since July 1979, 120,000 backlist titles that have registered price and other changes, and 15,000 titles that have gone out-of-print.

Books in Series in the United States. 3rd ed. 1980. 5,800 pp. $150. three volume set.

Provides full bibliographic information for some 300,000 titles in series. Each entry includes information concerning author, title, and LC card number with headings for the series themselves. Series titles are listed alphabetically. Author and title indexes are included.

Canadian Books in Print 1979, edited by Martha Pluscauskas. 1979. Author and Title Index: 1,200 pp. $40; Subject Index: 700 pp. $35.

Includes all titles of some 800 Canadian publishers small houses, associations, literary presses and others. The Author/Title index provides finding and ordering on approximately 20,000 titles. The Subject Index arranges these titles in one or more of 700 subject categories.

Children's Books in Print 1980-1982. 12th ed. 1981. 950 pp. $38.50 Revised annually in December.

A companion volume to The Bookfinder contains books published from 1975 through 1978. There are approximately 723 annotations of new listings. Topics have been expanded to include such areas as aging, harassment, hyperactivity, unemployed parents, death, divorce, and others. Of special interest is an explanation of the history and uses of bibliotherapy and suggested reading about bibliotherapy and an updated listing of other publishers bibliographies of selected childrens books.

Part B: Comprehensive Lists

National Association of Independent Schools. Ad. Hoc. Library Committee. Books for Secondary School Library. 6th edition. New York: Bowker, 1981. 844 pp. $27.50.

Arranged by Dewey Decimal Classification, the books selected are recommended for College-bound students. The 6th edition provides more titles, more depth and more coverage in such areas as Genetics, Geneology, the Middle East, Women's studies, American Poetry, and Area Studies. Contains author, title and subject index.

Winkel, Lois, ed. The Elementary School Library Collection. 12th ed. Greensboro, N.C.: Bro-Dart Foundation, 1979. 1,096 pp. $39.95. Biennial.

Annotates approximately 10,000 entries including books, filmstrips, prints and other nonprint materials evaluated by practicing library media specialists. Classified catalog has selections for references, nonfiction, fiction, easy reading, professional tools with nonprint media integrated with print in the same subject area. Especially useful are the appendixes, "Materials for Pre-School Children" and "Books for Beginning Independent Reading".

H.W. Wilson Company. Standard Catalog Series. Bronx, N.Y.: Wilson.

Each of these volumes is revised periodically. Currency is maintained with annual paperback supplements. In each, Part 1, classified by the Dewey Decimal System, provides bibliographic information for each book and suggests grade levels and subject headings; Part 2 is an author-title-subject, and analytical index; Part 3 is a directory of publishers and distributors. Selection of titles by advisory committee and consultants.

Children's Catalog. 14th ed. 1981. 1,284 pp. $54, U.S. and Canada; $64, foreign.

Includes 5,901 titles and 11,259 analytical entries. A new feature of the fourteenth edition is the use of uniform titles, bringing together diverse forms of individual folk and fairy tales under one heading. There is also coverage of the history and development of children's literature, book selection, and the operation of effective media centers. Highly selective, it includes "the best books for children in the field of fiction and nonfiction." Kept up-to-date with four annual supplements.

Junior High School Library Catalog. 4th ed. 1980. 939 pp. $62, U.S. and Canada; $70, foreign. Includes four annual supplements, 1981-1984.

The 4th edition reflects new areas of interest such as titles in oceanography, solar energy, parapsychology and in problem areas such as teen-age alcoholism. While black minorities retain their share of titles, there is increased emphasis on other minorities such as Chicanos, Puerto Ricans and other white ethnic groups. Includes a basic collection of approximately 4,000 titles and 9,000 analytical entries with some 6,000 titles to be covered in the supplements.

Senior High School Catalog. 11th ed. 1977. 1,416 pp. $50, U.S. and Canada; $58, foreign.

Includes 5,281 titles, including adult titles considered appropriate for advanced high school curriculum. The 11th edition has a greater representation about ethnic groups, increased coverage for foreign language dictionaries, an increase in titles in 300's and 700's. Part II provides 17,587 analytical entries. Revised every four years with supplements.

Vertical File Index. Published monthly except August. $18, U.S. and Canada; $22, foreign.

A subject and title index to free and inexpensive material. Arranged alphabetically by subject, with title, complete bibliographic data, name and address of publisher, and a descriptive note for each entry.

IV. SOURCES OF COMPUTER TECHNOLOGY

Part A: Lists of Computer Software and Hardware

American Society for Information Science. The Annual Review of Information Science and Technology, edited by Martha E. Williams. White Plains, N.Y.: Knowledge Industry Publications, Inc., 1966 — . V. 3-10, $35; V. 11-14, $37.50; V. 15, $42.50.

Each year selected topics receive comprehensive review. Volume 15 issued for 1980 introduces five chapters for the first time: Database Management Systems for Numeric Data Bases; Information Systems in Developing Countries; Legal Information Systems and Services; Artificial Intelligence Applications; Computer - Mediated Communication. Indexed.

American Society for Information Science. Computer Science Resources: A Guide to Professional Literature, compiled by Darlene Myers. White Plains, N.Y.: Knowledge Industry Publications, 1981. 300 pp. $47.60 (ASIS members); $59.50, others.

Divided into ten chapters and appendices, it includes more than 800 books, 450 computer-related journals, 100 technical reports, 22 indexing and abstracting resources, 47 directories, handbooks, dictionaries, 140 university computer newsletters, 54 software resources, 65 procedings references (synposia), 28 common programming languages, 250 programming languages with acronyms and dates, 180 bibliographical resources and publishers with addresses.

Association for Computing Machinery (ACM). Topics: Computer Education for Elementary and Secondary Schools. Baltimore, Md.: The Association, 1980. 92 pp. $5 (members); $10 (non members).

Issued by the Education Board, ACM, this compilation of summary papers developed 25 task groups on topics related to computers in elementary and secondary education. Most of the papers include lists of references to recent publications. Task groups' topics include "Acquisition of Computer Facilities", Alternative (Non-Formal) education", "Arts Education, Music Education, and the Humanities", "Computer Literacy", "Computers and the Media Center", and "Mathematics Curriculum"

Frederick, Franz J. Guide to Microcomputers. Washington, D.C.: Association for Educational Communications and Technology, 1980. 160 pp. $11.50; $9.50 (members).

Discusses the general nature of microcomputers; computer languages in simple English; operating systems and what they can do for you; compatible systems; special accessories; time sharing; service and maintenance; potential instructional and media center applications; microcomputers in schools; an extensive list of resources by manufactures name

Friedman, Paul. Computer Programs in BASIC. New York: Prentice-Hall, 1981. 271 pp. $19.95; $10.95 paper.

Arranged under six categories - business, games, mathematics, personal interest, science/education, and utility programs, the reviews of computer programs that appeared in personal computer magazines from 1975-1979 include title, author, magazine references and a short description, the version of BASIC in which the program was written, computer used, and any special software required.

Grogona, Peter. Programming in PASCAL. Revised ed. Reading, Mass.: Addison - Wesley, 1980. 363 pp. $12.95 (paper).

Useful as an introduction for the beginner and a reference for the experienced programmer, provides a wealth of information on programming concepts, procedures, functions, types of files, program design plus sample programs and exercises. A bibliography is included as a stimulus to further reading. Appendices describe PASCAL vocabulary and syntax.

Grosch, Andrey N. Minicomputers in Libraries, 1979-80. White Plains, N.Y.: Knowledge Industry Publications, Inc. 1979. 142 pp. $24.50.

Presenting the issues, the approaches and terminology this study incorporates the distributive processing in libraries, existing computer hardware and software, the pros and cons of discs or cassette tapes, and the nature of input and output service, communications equipment, and other hardware.

Harvard University. Graduate School of Education. Gutman Library. Microcomputer Site Directory. Cambridge, Mass.: The University, 1980. 40 pp. $5.

250 educational locations in the United States using microcomputers for instructional or administrative purposes are grouped by States. Programs and types of computer uses are indexed by subject.

Kansky, Robert Jr., William P. Heck, and Jerry Johnson. Guidelines for Evaluating Computerized Instructional Materials. Reston, Va.: National Council of Teachers of Mathematics, 1981. 32 pp. $3.75. (20% discount to members).

Divided into seven sections: (1) Discusses special nature of evaluating computer materials; (2) Identifies issues of software; (3) Evaluation checklist (4) Software documentation for cataloging; (5) Exchanging or modifying software; (6) Four topical bibliographies; (7) Additional forms.

Mason, George and Jay Blanchard. Computer Applications in Reading. Newark, Del.: International Reading Association, 1979. 116 pp. $3 (members); $4.50 (others).

420 annotated references to specific program descriptions in College Centers and public schools, readability and textbook analysis, computer services, uses in reading programs and reading research make-up the publication.

Microcomputer Guide. Bismark, N.D.: Department of Public Instruction, 1979 46 pp. Limited copies available free. Check ERIC.

Divided into five parts - Introduction, Choosing a Microcomputer System, Outline, Computer Application, Resources-Glossary, this guide emphasized less repetitive problem solving, but more use of the computer allowing students to develop insights and make discoveries not otherwise possible.

Resources section includes textbooks, references, and periodicals.

Appendix contains CAI spelling programs, computer careers and discussion on flow charting.

Part B: Periodicals, Relating to Computer Technology

Advanced Technology Libraries White Plains, N.Y.: Knowledge Industry Publications, Inc. $48/year; $88/2 years.

Published monthly, the newsletter includes concise reports on current library technology, news in brief, new publications, listings of meetings. An annual index.

AEDS Bulletin. Washington, D.C.: Association for Educational Data Systems, VI——. Quarterly. $7. (Non-members); included in membership.

Features in a newspaper format news, articles, and calendar of events relating to use of computers in education and events of interest to the Association.

AEDS Journal. Washington, D.C.: Association for Educational Data Systems, V. 1——. Quarterly. (January, April, July, October). $25 to non-members.

Articles on original research, system or project descriptions and evaluations, synthesis of the literature, assessments on the state of the art and book reviews make up each issue. Special issues focus on a single topic, such as Fall 1979 on "Microcomputers: Their Selection and Application in Education".

AEDS Monitor. Washington, D.C.: Association for Educational Data Systems, VI ——. Quarterly. $15 (non-members); included in membership.

Issued quarterly, the publication features short articles written in a popular style and about computers in education. Also features, "What's New In ERIC". Index to each volume included in first issue of the next volume.

BYTE: The Small Systems Journal. Peterborough, N.H.: Mc Graw Hill, Monthly. $19 (U.S.A.); $21 (Canada); Newstands $3 (U.S.A.); $3.75 (Canada).

In addition to feature articles, there are often how-to-articles and a regular section, "Educational Forum". Contains much advertising.

Classroom Computer News. Cambridge, Mass.: Classroom Computer News Co. 6 times a year. $9 (U.S.A.); $12 (Canada). Single copues $2.

30 page newsletter for the classroom teacher with little electronics background.

The Computing Teacher. La Grande, Ore.: Computing Center, Eastern Oregon State College. 9 times a year. $14.50 (U.S.A.); $20 (Canada); $2.25 single issues plus $2.50 shipping unless prepaid.

Designed primarily for teachers in elementary and secondary schools and in teacher education programs, the journal is published by the International Council for Computers in Education to provide assistance in improving the age of computer in education. A recent issue (Vol 8, No. 6) features a bibliography of educational journals and newsletters. Each issue has separate departments for reviewing books, films, and software.

Creative Computing: The #1 Magazine of Computer Application and Software. Morristown, N.J.: Creative Computing, 12 issues yearly. $20 (U.S.A.); $29 (Canada); newstand $2.50.

EPIE identifies the journal's emphasis as "educational applications and on small computers like the Atari 400".

Educational Computer Magazine. Cupertino, Ca.: Educational Computer Magazine, 1981 - . bimonthly. $12 year. $20 (Canada and Mexico). $26 (other foreign).

Planned as an informational exchange for elementary - colleges and university levels, magazine covers critical issues relating to using microcomputers in education and includes articles about classroom programs and experiences in computer use.

Electronic Learning, the Magazine of Technology in Education. Englewood Cliffs, N.J.: Scholastic Inc., Bimonthly. $20 Year.

Provides non-technical articles on using electronic technology in education, comprehensive reports on educational research about electronic learning guides for selecting software and hardware, reviews of software program and packages.

Microcomputer Index. Santa Clara, Ca.: Microcomputer Information Services, Quarterly. $22.

In two sections, each issue includes a subject index derived from 18 periodical sources which provide complete bibliographic information on over 1,100 articles, book reviews, hardware and software reviews; and an abstract section which briefly summarizes contents of current reviews and articles with references to locating the full text.

Personal Computing: For Your Home and Business. Rochelle Park, N.J.: Hayden Publishing, Monthly. $14. ($18 by surface mail, $20 by airmail); newstand $2.

Computer chess, bridge, and other games plus general-interest articles of interest to educators and tutorial articles featuring up-to-date methods and programming techniques.

Recreational Computing: For the Imaginative Small Computer User! Menlo Park, Ca.: People's Computer Co., 6 issues yearly. $12 (U.S.A.); $20 (Canada); newstand $2.50 (U.S.A.); $3 (Canada).

Includes articles about user of the computer in education in addition to user for recreation.

Small Computers in Libraries, edited by Allan D. Pratt. Tucson, Az.: University of Arizona, Monthly. $20 (U.S.A.), $25 (Canada), $35 elsewhere.

An eight page newsletter focusing on systems costing $10,000 or less and serving as a clearinghouse for information on microcomputers in libraries includes reviews of books and programs, glossaries, and short articles.

Software Review. Westpoint, Ct.: Microform Review, 1981 - . Issued twice a year. $38.

Purpose is to provide library computer users information about available prewritten programs.
